I am writing you to let you know that we expect to have the special compound of [redacted] finalized within the next few days. Preliminary results already show great improvements in the longevity of the product without loss of the original taste. We expect that the new expiration date will be at least twice as long as before.

However, if we want to have a production rate for [redacted] that is similar to the rates that other compounds are produced, we will be needing more [redacted] As mentioned in a previous memo, the vanilla extract is not powerful enough to enrich the taste. We found that using a [redacted] in [redacted] will compensate for this, and also adds some additional flavour to it as well. Since [redacted] is used a lot in other compounds as well, we will need to readjust our budget allocations. To keep up with the production, this roughly translates to at least an increase of 50,000 RTNCOIN in the current allocation. Dr E. Zecutive will probably not like this news, so I decided to inform you first so that you can prepare for the storm that is to come.

Best regards,
Dr. S. Berry
